Riduculous On/Off Switches

I love the feel of the headlamp on my head, and it certainly lives up to its billings regarding the light it produces. But, the push button switches for changing the intensity of the light and the blinking warning light feature is the most complicated I have ever seen on any product. I spent sooo much time the first night I wore it on the job trying to figure out how to coordinate three separate buttons to get the level of light I needed. And, there are NO directions on, nor in, the package. Still, overall it provides a great stream of light needed for my job, so I guess I'll just have to keep "playing with it" to learn their unique system.

Perfect! Headlamp of my dreams!

I have owned just about every high end headlamp on the market. They all have left me wanting or experienced premature failure. I can't say anything negative about this light. I have two of them, plus a spare battery and charger. Some have commented that it is uncomfortable on a bare head. I have not had that experience. I am an HVAC tech and it is on my head most of the day. I have not had any discomfort. The headband is very adjustable and holds its adjustment. The selection of beams is perfect. I use mostly the bright flood and spot positions. It almost always lasts the day before needing charging. The battery is accessible with out tools and is easy to change. The unit is rugged enough to withstand any normal abuse. Like I said, perfect, I love it!!

Awesome light, slight problem.

I carry this headlamp in my glove bag, and pull it out when it gets dark. Its bright and quickly recharges. The only issue I have with it, is the clip that holds the light. It broke and I recently got it. I hope they can make it more sturdy, in case of drops.

Great product especially being rechargeable.

I am a shift fitter so especially useful on night shift, and well set up for using on safety helmet with the plastic clips. Only downside is I would like a separate charger so I can have a battery ready to chnge when it goes flat.

yes when this on stops working.

because my eye sight is not as good as it used to be, I find that putting more light on my work help alot. I open the package and tried it for a hour or two. I was very happy with the light it give to see with.

as far as how it charges so far I am not happy, I hocked it up to my usb charge strip that I use for all other usb cords and left it on over night. It was still flashing red 5 1/2 hours later when I got up. unplugged it and the next day after using it til the light flashed. I plugged it in to charge, took about 12 hours to charge fully. I going to have to see about a wall plug and change that way for 12 to full charge is way to long. also it was the only thing plug in at time of charging on the usb strip if you were wondering. Jeff

All the light I need....

This light goes where no light I've ever owned has gone before. Super bright with many modes to choose from and a sensible rechargeable system. Doesn't have to be mounted on a hard hat but feel fine on a bare head too. I'm very impressed with this product.

I honestly don't believe it's 475 lumens!

I love how you can have more than one battery charged and change out the dead one to keep working. The problem I have is I have a Walmart rechargeable headlamp that is much brighter and lights the area farther away, almost twice the distance as the Milwaukee. The Walmart one says it's only 350 lumens, yet is much brighter than the 475 lumen Milwaukee headlamp.

Should've bought alot sooner

I work for a power company, so looking 50ft in the air at night is the norm, and i can see the pole tops easily with this light recharge time isnt that long and you can purchase a battery and charger for 40bucks so no more carrying around a box of double As. My only complaint is the hard hat clips, don't get me wrong they're fine and the band holds good without them in the first place but why any manufacturers haven't made a better design is beyond me

Yes, I recommend this product.
